

Southern Waste & Recycling is a national waste and recycling company, providing a comprehensive selection of targeted, economical, waste optimization solutions. Thanks to our strong partnerships with haulers, landfills and recyclers, we have a proven ability to save our customers between 20% and 40%—and sometimes more.

Whether you operate a large production facility locally or many locations over multiple regions, Southern Waste & Recycling can help you reduce operating costs, minimize and contain landfill expenses, implement sustainability initiatives, and better manage the day-to-day services of your locations. We provide timely, detailed reporting, comprehensive site auditing and benchmarking of cost-reduction and green initiatives.

Multi-Facility Waste Services

As a multi-dimensional leader in the areas of cost containment, waste management and recycling solutions, Southern Waste & Recycling leverages its industry expertise, partner relationships and customer centric focus for the benefit of its multi-site operators. We constantly strive to generate savings for our customers through analysis, audit, review and on-going cost-reduction programs. These initiatives also ensure equipment allocations and service schedules are appropriate for each facility.

Our 10-year expertise as a waste broker and broad network of industry partnerships enables us to secure the best possible rates—which we pass on to our customers, typically reducing their bills by 20% or greater. Our management and reporting software enables us to deliver detailed, site-level waste and recycling-material specific information for multi-location businesses.

Recycling Services

Southern Waste & Recycling is an environmentally conscious company that helps its customers develop practical, sustainable recycling programs. These programs not only benefit the planet but also enable our clients to reduce their waste footprint while reducing overall costs.

Our custom-designed recycling and waste management solutions reflect industry best practices and will be tailored to your budget and service needs. For companies that think small size or compliance restraints prevent them from saving money by recycling, we have developed innovative solutions, including pickup and aggregation of recyclables, to make this benefit a reality.

Southern Waste & Recycling's specialized reporting software delivers detailed recycling-related information such as tonnage and rebate dollars generated at each facility for the specified materials. These reports enable customers to demonstrate to the business community, shareholders and management team measurable results that translate to positive corporate stewardship.

Sustainability Initiatives

In today's business environment, sustainable initiatives are no longer just a "feel good" effort; they are an important component of cost control and strategic positioning. We support these initiatives, not only through vendor partnerships, but also through strategic alliances with other companies with common environmental goals.

One of Southern Waste & Recycling's most proven partnerships is with Wilheit Packaging. Based in Gainesville, GA Wilheit distributes some of the most environmentally-friendly packaging materials available anywhere. Thanks to this partnership, Southern Waste & Recycling and Wilheit Packaging offer a closed-loop solution for their clients that purchase packaging products and wish to promote affordable and sustainable recycling practices.

From performing container and schedule optimization for multi-site businesses to designing realistic, efficient recycling programs for companies large and small, Southern Waste & Recycling is a leader in comprehensive, cost-effective and environmentally sensitive waste management.

Wilheit Packaging Partners with Southern Waste & Recycling

For Southern Waste & Recycling, achieving our company mission of environmental stewardship means carefully selecting partners that not only believe in our goals but also want to work with us to further them for our clients. One of these companies is Gainesville-based Wilheit Packaging.

In 1953, when Wilheit Packaging was founded in a garage by Tom Wilheit (Philip Wilheit Sr.'s grandfather) no one could have envisioned the changes that would take place in the industry. In a time before convenience became a mainstay of society, companies were focused on delivering a quality product rather than worrying about their impact on the environment.

Today, that has changed, and Wilheit is leading the charge. The Gainesville-based company, which managing partner Philip Wilheit Jr. says has been "really pushing sustainable packaging" for the past five to six years, currently supplies some of the most environmentally friendly packaging products available.

From stretch films that are biodegradable and those that are stronger and thinner than ever (reducing materials use by 40%) to molded paper containers made from leftover pulp, Wilheit is at the forefront of sustainability initiatives in the packaging industry.

A friendship between Southern Waste & Recycling President Phil Kitchens and Wilheit led to them discussing their common interest in sustainability a few years ago. The result has been a pioneering collaboration to provide an end-to-end solution for packaging materials.

As part of a plan to encourage customers to recycle, Wilheit and Southern Waste & Recycling are rolling out a new program where loose and baled cardboard will be returned in empty delivery trailers to Wilheit's Gainesville facility. Then the material will be separated by customer and marketed at the appropriate time to capture the highest possible return. This off-site storage program will prevent customers from having to store baled or loose cardboard material on their property or from trailers occupying additional dock space. Southern Waste & Recycling initially provided recycling services for Wilheit when customer-stored poly and paper based materials became obsolete. In the past four years Southern Waste & Recycling has helped a number of Wilheit's clients develop recycling programs so that more materials could end up at a recycling facility instead of a landfill.

After Southern Waste & Recycling's recent success in developing a sustainable, multi facility recycling program for one of Wilheit's largest poultry-processing customers, there was realization that together they could really make a difference. Today, Wilheit and Southern Waste & Recycling perform sustainable, cradle-to-grave processing for some of the biggest customers of packaged materials in the state of GA. Wilheit and Southern Waste & Recycling are expanding their partnership and expect to have a noticeable impact, statewide.

Customers reap a measurable benefit as well, because they reduce their overall waste expense, receive credits for the materials they recycle and have a great, "green" story to share with clients. "Wilheit has the same initiatives as Southern Waste & Recycling," says Kitchens. "We have created an alliance based on these synergies: environmental focus, stewardship and creating sustainable programs for end-to-end solutions."
